

The first step's a doozy

August 30, 2010

British Army Cadet Force member Joseph Ashworth from the Isle of Wight was helped over the edge of the Winchester Fire-EMS training tower by Lt. Col. Joe Gorman of the Army Cadets of Millersburg during a rappelling class Saturday morning, top photo. Thirty teenage British boys and girls were in Central Kentucky last week training at various locations with cadets from the former Millersburg Military Institute. British cadet Lance Cpl. Emily Farrugia closed her eyes and held her breath when she was first suspended over the edge of the four-story high training tower, above. Sgt. Daniel Smith came down the tower wall in a head-first position, pausing for a moment to speak to British training officer Lt. Ray Lee, right photo. The cadets were to return home on Sunday.
